Explain: Provide a balanced view of the differing and opposing perspectives with some reference to underlying health concepts.	Explain Examine the perspectives or issue with insight into the reasons for the differing perspectives and their ethical foundations. Link the examination to underlying health concepts.

Personal Values

Morals + Values

Values are the compass guiding life's journey. They're beliefs shaping who we are and how we interact. Integrity, empathy, and kindness are pillars, lighting our path towards meaningful connections and purposeful actions.

Ethics

Ethics are the rules of engagement in the game of life. They're the moral principles guiding our decisions, actions, and relationships, shaping a just and honorable society.

New Zealand Ethical Considerations

Rights and Justice

- "People in prison should lose their right to vote."
- "The justice system in Aotearoa New Zealand treats everyone fairly, regardless of their race or ethnicity."
- "Solitary confinement should never be used, even for people who are violent or at risk."

Children and Youth

- "Oranga Tamariki should be able to remove children from families without iwi or whānau consultation."
- "All 17-year-olds should be treated as adults in the criminal justice system."
- "The government is doing enough to protect the rights of tamariki Māori."

Social Inequality and Housing

- "It's acceptable that some families in New Zealand have to live in cars or emergency housing."
- "The government should tax the wealthy more to reduce poverty in Aotearoa."
- "Everyone in Aotearoa has an equal opportunity to succeed, no matter their background."

Health and Disability

- "New Zealand's mental health system provides enough support for people in crisis."
- "People with disabilities in New Zealand receive the support and respect they deserve."
- "Māori and Pasifika youth receive enough culturally appropriate mental health support."

Environment and Indigenous Rights

- "Iwi should have decision-making power over the rivers, lakes, and land in their rohe (area)."
- "Oil and gas exploration in Aotearoa is justified if it helps the economy."
- "The government is upholding the promises of Te Tiriti o Waitangi when it comes to natural resources."

Support:

Voluntary Euthanasia Society New Zealand - VESNZ - <https://ves.org.nz/>

What do they believe?

Believe in the right to have the choice for assisted dying by medical professionals.

Why do they believe it?

To end suffering at the end of life, maintain dignity. President is Maryan Street former president of NZ Labour Party. Personal experiences with the cause.

Support:

Yes for Compassion Society - YES

What do they believe?

We believe terminally ill New Zealanders should have choice and control at the end of life, including the option of requesting life-ending medication in the final six months of life. We launched Yes for Compassion to make sure the public is well informed about the legislation ahead of the historic vote in October 2020

Why do they believe it?

Personal experience - linking to personal attitudes and values.

Against:

DEFEND NZ - Defend

What do they believe?

We have one common goal: to speak up about the implications that the End of Life Choice Act will have on society. To give voice to those who would be most affected by this Act and speak out about how it will impact families/whānau, the health system, legal system and the daily lives of those with terminal illness, the elderly and disabled.

Why do they believe it?

he current New Zealand context, characterised as it is by 'functionalism', increasing ageism that is manifesting itself in growing elder abuse and an increase in the social isolation of the elderly, and a deficit understanding and fear of disability means, in our view, that there has never been a more dangerous time to make suicide and/or euthanasia more easily available

Against:

The Nathaniel Centre - Nathaniel

What do they believe?

Euthanasia will inevitably be practised through the various prisms of social inequality and bias that characterise the delivery of social and health services in our country. It is our informed view that when all of the risks are objectively assessed and weighed up, any perceived benefits for a small minority of persons would be far outweighed by far larger numbers being exposed to the very real dangers of a premature death. Better health care.
