L2 HEALTH

LEARNING INTENTION

Build knowledge of mana to enhance your self-identity

SUCCESS CRITERIA

Identify how you or someone else demonstrates mana

mana

WHAT IS mana?

Mana can be defined in English as a person's authority, control, influence, prestige, self-concept, or power.

It is also about honour, integrity, and social standing. It can be a source of both personal and collective strength, pride, and identity.

There are two things that we can be certain of mana:

(1) it is something that can be felt when you're in the presence of it, (2) it goes hand in hand with respect and honour.

The best way to think of mana is to think of a person who has that air of importance about them. When that person walks into a room, speaks, or starts to do "their thing", even if you have never met the person before, you will instantly be alert to their presence.

mana

TYPES OF mana

Traditionally, there are three kinds of mana.

Mana whakaheke

The mana a person is born with This mana comes from the whakapapa, or the genealogy, of the person. This could be the status/ reputation of the parents, grandparents, great-grandparents right back to the people who came across on the waka (canoes), or those who descend from royalty or well-known families.

There is also mana from being descendants of tūpuna (ancestors) who are well known for their deeds. Some whānau (families) are known for certain skills, traits, and abilities which come from their tūpuna. This is similar to how there are families today who are known for their sporting, business, musical, or political skills.

TYPES OF mana

Mana tuku

The mana that the people give you This is the recognition that people give for your deeds and actions. Just because a person is born from a great descent line, it does not necessarily mean that they will have great mana amongst other people. The mana a person is born with sets them off, but the way they conduct themselves throughout life will either strengthen their own personal mana—and by association the mana of their tūpuna—or weaken their own personal mana. Humility is a very highly valued trait in the Māori world. Many great leaders are very humble people, which is part of why they are revered. Other people sing their praises, thereby heightening their mana. From a Māori worldview, great leaders never sing their own praises. It is not that they are trying to be humble, it is that they just are. Mana is attributed to someone by others—not by themselves. It is not appropriate to seek mana by telling people about how important you think you are.

mana

TYPES OF mana

Mana ā-rōpu—group mana

This is the mana that a group has; for example, the mana of a marae, church, or group (for example, the kapa haka teams that win Te Matatini each year). This is often enhanced by mana tuku. When people stay on a marae, and are well looked after and are given great food, those manuhiri when they leave will tell everyone about the great experience, how well they were looked after, and the great food, which builds the mana of that marae and of the tangata whenua there. On the other hand, if the manuhiri were not looked after well, they would be fast to tell everyone about that also, hence weakening the mana of the particular marae involved and the tangata whenua there. Other forms of mana ā-rōpu are the mana of a whānau, a hapū, and an iwi.

mana

mana

Make a copy of the next three slides and answer the questions:

Think of someone in your whakapapa, family, or local community who you admire because they have mana. Record and then discuss the following questions in a small group.

mana

MANA WHAKAHEKE

- (a) What does this person do that causes you to admire him/her?
- (b) How do their behaviours/actions benefit others?
- (c) If you could describe this person in five words, what would they be?
- (d) Do you have any of these same qualities?

mana

MANA TUKU

- (a) Why are the qualities/skills described above important or useful?
- (b) How might these qualities help people to be successful in life?
- (c) How might you develop these qualities/skills?

mana

MANA Ā-RŌPU

- (a) How do qualities like this help you to build and sustain relationships with others?
- (b) How might these qualities/skills be used to help/be of service to your whānau/community?
- (c) Collate all of the qualities identified by members of your group and consider which of these qualities you possess. In what contexts/places do you get a chance to practise/show them? How do they help you in life?

EXTENSION - MANAAKITANGA

Manaakitanga is a commonly used word in schools in Aotearoa. It is usually used to refer to the importance of “hospitality” and/or caring for others. However, the word manaaki is made up of two words: “mana” (pride/positive self-concept) and “aki” (to cherish or nurture). Therefore, to manaaki others is to do things that cherish their mana. We might manaaki our grandmother by doing chores for her, or manaaki our best friend by helping them prepare for an important social event. The point is that we do these things because we want to show them that we care and affirm their importance in our life.

How do you manaaki those around you?

To what effect?

How do others manaaki you?

What does this mean to you?

LEARNING INTENTION

To build knowledge of our Gender and Sexuality

SUCCESS CRITERIA

- Identify differences between gender and sexuality
- Identify key terms used for gender and sexuality

Gender

Gender

While many people assume that gender is fixed or stable, it is actually a social construct.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) defines gender as follows:

Gender refers to the socially constructed characteristics of women and men—such as norms, roles and relationships of and between groups of women and men.

It varies from society to society and can be changed. While most people are born either male or female, they are taught appropriate norms and behaviours—including how they should interact with others of the same or opposite sex within households, communities and workplaces.

Gender

When individuals or groups do not 'fit' established gender norms they often face stigma, discriminatory practices or social exclusion—all of which adversely affect health. It is important to be sensitive to different identities that do not necessarily fit into binary male or female sex categories.

Gender norms, roles and relations influence people's susceptibility to different health conditions and diseases and affect their enjoyment of good mental, physical health and wellbeing. They also have a bearing on people's access to and uptake of health services and on the health outcomes they experience throughout the life-course.

Gender is different from sexuality and from biological sex. Rainbow Youth NZ (www.ry.org.nz/genderidentity/) states that: Gender refers to the gender that someone identifies with, while sex usually refers to the sex someone is assigned at birth. It can be helpful to think of it as: sex is between your legs and gender is in your head/heart.

Assigned sex is a label that you're given at birth based on medical factors, including your hormones, chromosomes, and genitals. Most people are assigned male or female. When someone's sexual and reproductive anatomy doesn't seem to fit the typical definitions of female or male, they may be described as intersex. Some people call the sex we're assigned at birth "biological sex". But this term doesn't fully capture the complex biological, anatomical, and chromosomal variations that can occur. Having only two options (biological male or biological female) might not describe what's going on inside a person's body. Instead of saying "biological sex", some people use the phrase "assigned male at birth" or "assigned female at birth".

This acknowledges that someone (often a doctor) is making a decision for someone else. The assignment of a biological sex may or may not align with what's going on with a person's body, how they feel, or how they identify. (www.plannedparenthood.org)

SEXUALITY

Sexuality

A central aspect of being human throughout life encompasses sex, gender identities and roles, sexual orientation, eroticism, pleasure, intimacy, and reproduction.

Sexuality is experienced and expressed in thoughts, fantasies, desires, beliefs, attitudes, values, behaviours, practices, roles, and relationships. While sexuality can include all of these dimensions, not all of them are always experienced or expressed.

Sexuality involves the interaction of biological, psychological, social, economic, political, cultural, legal, historical, religious, and spiritual factors. (World Health Organization, 2006). Everyone has sexuality regardless of whether they are sexually active. Sexuality can be thought of as how you enjoy having sex, which often encompasses sexual behaviour and sexual orientation.

Sexual Orientation

Sexual Orientation

Sexual orientation is about attraction. It can be fluid and change over time. Some people are attracted to males, some to females, some people are attracted to neither, in between, or both. Sexual orientation is about who you're attracted to and who you feel drawn to romantically, emotionally, and sexually. Sexual orientation can be described with terms like: heteroromantic, homoromantic, bi-romantic, panromantic, and aromantic. Using labels to define sexual orientation can both enable and disable discussions, and empower, disempower, or restrict people. Sexual orientation encompasses sexual behaviour, in that people generally are sexually attracted to the people they are romantically attracted to (this is not always the case). The term "straight" implies heteroromanticism and heterosexuality, while gay/lesbian implies the opposite (homoromanticism and homosexuality). Language and labels can get confusing as "bisexual" means bi-romantic and bisexual to varying degrees, or when asexual or aromantic labels are

DO NOW

“Gender and sexual identity is complex and fluid. It’s OK to be who you are and to feel a mix of things. Identity can change over time.”

Discuss in pairs what you think this means?

LEARNING INTENTION

To build knowledge of 2.5 Gender and Sexuality Assessment

SUCCESS CRITERIA

- Read the entire 2.5 Gender and Sexuality Assessment
- Complete the associated assessment questions

2.5 GENDER AND SEXUALITY ASSESSMENT

- In pairs read the entire assessment
 - Once you have read the assessment, completed the following questions in a book (not your chromebook):
1. What is the title of the assessment?
 2. What does the assessment require you do?
 3. Explain the difference between the 3 achievement levels?
 4. When is this assessment due?
 5. How many parts are there to the assessment?
 6. How many credits is it worth?
 7. What knowledge does this assessment require?
 8. What questions do you have about the assessment?

CLASS TASK

As a class we will go through the questions together and learners will have the opportunity to ask questions about the assessment at the end:

1. What is the title of the assessment?
2. What does the assessment require you do?
3. Explain the difference between the 3 achievement levels?
4. When is this assessment due?
5. How many parts are there to the assessment?
6. How many credits is it worth?
7. What knowledge does this assessment require?
8. What questions do you have about the assessment?

ReFlection TASK

1. Think to yourself where you sit on this continuum
2. Share your thoughts at your table on whether you think people stay at one particular place on the continuum or move
3. Share your thinking on what influences/changes happen to people that make them more static (still) or dynamic (move) on the continuum

Review of Learning

REVIEW OF GENDER & SEXUALITY LEARNING

Key Terms

Gender - the social construct of male and female characteristics which includes norms, roles and relationships. Gender is fluid across male and female.

Gender Identity - what a person identifies with as their internal sense of their gender, this is not always guided by their sex.

Sex - the assigned biological label you are given at birth

Sexuality - involves people's attitudes, values, beliefs and feelings about others and their relationships, sexual behaviour, sexual orientation and identity.

Sexual Orientation - who you are attracted to romantically and sexually. Can be fluid

Hauora & Sexuality

Hauora & Sexuality

Everyone experiences sexuality it has an impact on wellbeing/hauora. This is especially relevant for youth as there are many changes happening in adolescence that are influencing youth and their sexuality as they move into adulthood. Therefore, it is important youth have a clear understanding of the impact of sexuality on their hauora - most importantly the promotion of positive sexuality!

HAUORA & SEXUALITY

Attitudes and Values

Attitudes and values themselves are not a concept. It is when we select certain attitudes and values and use them as a lens to analyse and evaluate the way people think and act on health and wellbeing matters that they become more of a concept.

Gives a sense of meaning about what is going on in a wellbeing related situation and why people think and act the way they do.

1. Read the above description on Attitudes and Values
2. Name one person who influences your attitudes and values and explain why?
3. Name one societal influence that influences your attitudes and values and why?

10:0

LEARNING INTENTION

To build knowledge of Attitudes and Values and PIPS

SUCCESS CRITERIA

- Review the socio-ecological perspective - Personal, Interpersonal, Societal
- Identify and explain strategies related to gender and sexuality scenarios

ATTITUDES & VALUES

Attitudes

A way of thinking or feeling with regards to someone or something.

Examples could be ...

"I'm honest with you because I trust you"

"I respect you because you respect me"

"I don't like to eat broccoli and how it tastes"

Values

A person's own set of principles which they consider of great importance.

Examples could be ...

"It is important to always be honest"

"Respect is given to those older than myself"

"I know vegetables are good for me and will always eat them, even if I don't like the taste"

ATTITUDES & VALUES

Complete this table in your books. Under the attitudes and values column, write a statement that reflects your attitude towards the topic in the middle column

Attitudes - way of thinking or feeling towards something

Values - what rules you set for yourself as the right thing to do

Attitudes	Topic	Values
	Marriage before Sex
	Contraception
	LBTQIA+
	Monogamous Relationships
	Women as Housewives

PERSONAL, INTERPERSONAL & SOCIETAL

Personal - actions that you are in control of yourself eg goal setting, self talk, journaling, physical exercise

Interpersonal - actions that involve working with others eg. friends, family, employment, teachers, church, school

Societal - actions that involve working with a group of people, community, organisation, media, government, health services, religion, education

In a health context we regularly recommend strategies to support people to work through any factors on a personal, interpersonal and societal level

STRATEGIES

Strategies in a health context are actions one can take to enhance their well-being

Look at this scenario 1, then in pairs recommend a personal, interpersonal and societal strategy for this persons scenario:

Damian is unsure about his sexual orientation. He comes from a family of four brothers who are all very masculine and play rugby. Damian also plays rugby and gets along with his brothers. Damian has a few friends that have girlfriends and some that are single. Damian feels that he is more attracted to males than females and wants to be able to express this to someone who is not going to judge him and he is worried about losing his friendships through potentially “coming out.”

Task 3

Explain the type of support or service offered by each of the following organisations or people who contribute in some way to young people's sexual health.

- a. The Health Education teacher
- b. The school nurse
- c. The school counsellor
- d. The Sexual Health clinic at the hospital
- e. The Family Planning Association clinic
- f. The youth website www.theword.org.nz
- g.-h. Two other organisations of your choice (e.g. church, cultural organisation, peer sexuality support team, Rainbow Youth, etc.)

STRATEGY TASKS 2

Complete the following task independently in your books:

Strategy 4: Societal strategies for promoting positive sexuality for all people (and teenagers in particular)

Task 4

How could the groups or organisations (listed in the following table) help promote positive sexuality for all teenagers (remembering teenagers are all different and come from diverse backgrounds)? Your answer needs to:

- describe a specific action that THREE different groups or organisations can undertake
- explain why the action would promote positive sexuality for teenagers especially in the way it supports, mental and emotional, social and/or spiritual well-being.

LEARNING INTENTION

To build knowledge and make sense of stereotypes

SUCCESS CRITERIA

- Make sense of feminism
- Identify stereotypes for men and women
- Identify the problems associated with stereotyping and give examples

BRAINSTORM

In pairs, on a piece of paper write down 10 words you associate with the word feminism and write them up on the board

Feminism

Feminism

WHAT IS FEMINISM?

Feminism is a social movement that began with women around the world fighting for the right to vote in the late 19th century. It has continued over the past 100+ years with second-wave feminism in the 1960s, third-wave feminism in the early 1990s, merging into the fourth-wave feminism of today.

These waves were all influenced by society at their respective times and included activism for women's rights around sexual and reproductive health (especially in relation to access to the Pill and abortion) and to support in the workplace, access to childcare, equal pay, and a range of other equity issues.

Feminism

WHAT IS FEMINISM?

Feminism in contemporary times is seen as important for both men and women to be involved with, as it concerns gender equity and the rights of all people to self-determine, be treated with respect, and without violence or oppression. For more information, see: www.rosie.org.au

STEREOTYPES a widely held but fixed oversimplified image or idea of a particular type of person or thing.

In pairs write down all the “stereotypes” society have of women and men

Once you have completed this write your words up on the board

women

men

STEREOTYPES

What are consequences of these stereotypes?

In pairs, pick three stereotype examples and write them down along with a reason why they are a problem

Feminism works to challenge these stereotypes so that men and women have more options and are more equal across contexts (work, home, in families, in sport, etc.).

LEARNING INTENTION

To build knowledge and make sense of the impacts of pornography

SUCCESS CRITERIA

- Identify issues related to the use of pornography

PORNOGRAPHY

HISTORY

There were three main differences:

Amount

Playboy and Penthouse were the two biggest mags. Playboy had its most subscribers in 1972 ... a whopping 7.6 million per year. Pornhub alone gets 115 million a day. There wasn't much video content either – in 1984 there were 400 porn videos made in the US, last year there were 6.8 million uploads, just to Pornhub.

Access

To read or watch porn you used to rock up to a video store or dairy, show them your ID card (18+), and then spend a week's pocket money buying a porn mag or hiring a porn video. Most families only had one device to watch it on...

PORNOGRAPHY

HISTORY

Content

A lot of porn was pretty low key before the internet, there were actual storylines, romance and bodies were more normal (different sizes)

. There was pretty much no violence, and a lot more affection, compared to porn today.

Playboy had its most subscribers in 1972... 7.6 million per year. Pornhub alone gets 115 million a day. Wow.

PORNOGRAPHY

CURRENT STATE

Pornography is defined as sexual action which depicts harm towards another human being ie degrades, violates, connects violence with sex, or involves the use of power over another individual or a group

Sources:

Social and Ethical Issues in Sexuality Education by Gillian Tasker et al. (Christchurch College of Education, 2000, and revised 2004)

PORNOGRAPHY

CURRENT STATE

“One in four young people in New Zealand first saw porn by the age of 12. Three out of four have seen it by 17. Most young people were not seeking out pornography when they first saw it, but they came across it anyway – it found them. Accidentally seeing porn is one thing, but some young people are viewing it regularly (15% view porn at least monthly, weekly, or daily). The majority of these regular viewers started looking at porn monthly, weekly or daily by age 14. Porn is an issue for girls and boys.

Social and Ethical Issues in Sexuality Education by Gillian Tasker et al. (Christchurch College of Education, 2000, and revised 2004)

PORNOGRAPHY

CURRENT STATE

Boys are more likely to see porn earlier, to seek it out, and to view it more often. But girls are also exposed to pornography, often at a young age. The majority of 14-year old girls have seen porn. Around 10 percent of girls view it regularly.” That much of the easily accessed online pornography shows sexual acts that are violent, demeaning, dehumanising, or exploitative (especially of women, children, and young people), and with no consideration of consent, or pleasure for all involved.

The negative impact on relationships and overall wellbeing as a consequence of viewing this type of pornography as it creates new unhealthy ‘norms’ and unrealistic expectations of sexual behaviour

Colour in the Pink Day Shirt image and write any anti-bullying slogans or words of empowerment around groups that maybe bullied for their Gender or Sexuality

Homophobic, biphobic and transphobic bullying

These terms refer to bullying based on a person's sexual orientation or gender identity. Rangatahi/young people who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, intersex, asexual or other sexuality and gender diverse communities, or are perceived to be part of the rainbow community, experience higher rates of bullying than students who do not. However, it is important to note that not all of these students will experience homophobic, biphobic or transphobic bullying.

Rainbow young people are resilient, have higher rates of volunteering and community engagement and are an important part of our community. Despite this, Rainbow young people are particularly vulnerable to experiencing homophobic, biphobic and transphobic bullying. 5

STATS

Over one in five transgender students (23%) said that they had been bullied at school weekly or more often in the past year, compared to 5% of cis gender students (Fenaughty, Sutcliffe, Fleming, Ker, Lucassen, Greaves, & Clark, 2021).

One in 14 of same/multiple sex attracted participants said that they had been bullied at school weekly or more often in the past year (Fenaughty, Clark, Choo, Lucassen, Greaves, Sutcliffe, Ball, Ker, & Fleming, 2021) 8

Discrimination and social exclusion on the basis of sexuality or gender identity has been directly linked to an increased risk of depression, anxiety and suicidal thoughts for LGBTQIA+ young people (Adams, Dickinson & Asiasiga, 2012). 9

The effects of homophobic and biphobic bullying at school can be lifelong, and can include lower educational attainment, lower income and lower wellbeing (Henrickson, 2008).
